- Exposure to regulatory risk

The explosives industry has high entry barrier as it requires industrial licensing, and clearances from government, chief controller of explosives, and directorate general of mines safety. Furthermore, as per the Ammonium Nitrate Rules 2012, ammonium nitrate, key raw material (comprises 70 per cent of the group's total raw material cost), has been classified as an explosive. Hence, its production, distribution, sale, and stocking require a license. Sale of explosives is regulated by Petroleum and Explosives Safety Organization (PESO) to prevent misuse of end products. Though the group takes precautions at all stages of the manufacturing process, it will remain susceptible to regulatory risks and any outburst at the factory sites are exposed to serious eventuality to the workers and the public and are key rating sensitivity factors.

The outlook may be revised to 'Negative' in case the group fails to achieve the projected revenues and profitability, or in case of deterioration in its financial risk profile on account of higher-than-expected increase in debt-funded working capital requirements.
