Weaknesses

Competition in edible oil industry

The industry is highly fragmented with both big manufacturers and numerous unorganised players in the market. There is intense competition in the industry with the players serving regional markets, which is a strategy followed to save on transportation costs. Hence, the group might face pricing pressure from other competitors. Therefore, having an established brand name is of utmost importance in this industry, along with the continuous addition of value added products in the product offerings.

Price volatility in the commodity market

Prices of edible oil are linked to prices of crude palm oil which is volatile and the sudden movement in price direction might affect the margins of the group going forward. The raw materials are also purchased from the international market apart from the domestic market, and disruptions in the supply chain can affect the availability of raw materials and further impact the price of raw materials.
